Then working for TalentSee, the exciting SaaS start up, is for you.

TalentSee is a new SaaS (software as a service) video interview platform, offering employers a range of assessment solutions delivered by flexible, highly-featured, live and on-demand video technology.

This is an amazing opportunity to be on the front line working for a young and ambitious start up, fully supported and backed by a business leader with 15 years' experience in the recruitment and assessment marketplace. So what does this mean for you?

- opportunity to learn and adopt new technologies
- working on a fast-paced project putting our ideas into practice every day
- working with a mix of IT specialists who demonstrate an open mind set, willingness to share experience, taking a fresh and innovative approach
- maintaining a good work/life balance
- following pure Agile development and best software practice

What we're looking for?

You'll be a recent graduate, experience is not essential and able to demonstrate a general knowledge of web and mobile technologies. You'll be passionate, an excellent communicator with a willingness to ask questions and have the desire to take ownership of projects and use your initiative as well as demonstrating good problem solving skills with an analytical approach.

What will you be exposed to on a daily basis in the role?

- Agile/Scrum
- Continuous Delivery
- Selenium Framework and test automation

Why else might you want to join us?

Video interviewing is a rapidly growing offering and is attracting significant interest in the market, particularly in recruitment. It adds richness to candidate assessment by replacing or complementing more traditional application and assessment methods with video. Video interviewing offers large cost savings, greater efficiency and convenience in the recruitment process by reducing/eliminating travel costs, reducing interviewer time and increasing the speed of the process.

To apply, please send your C.V. and a covering letter to:
Julie Butler - julie.butler@talentsee.com

Successful candidates will then be invited to complete a video interview using TalentSee technology.
